Call for Assistant Editor: Journal of Experiential Education

The Association for Experiential Education announces the search for a new Assistant Editor for the Journal of Experiential Education. This international, peer-reviewed, quarterly publication has been serving the field of experiential education since its establishment in 1978. We are currently accepting applications to begin immediately and serve through the end of 2021. Subsequent terms will be negotiated annually.

The Journal of Experiential Education (JEE) provides researchers and practitioners with research on experiential education and related fields. It presents a diverse range of articles in subject areas such as outdoor and adventure education, service learning, environmental education, therapeutic applications, international programming/study abroad, experiential learning in disciplinary contexts, and more. The Assistant Editor will work with the Editor in Chief to ensure high quality peer review and timely and accurate delivery of manuscripts for publication.

The Assistant Editor will share responsibility for soliciting, reviewing, and making final decisions on submissions to the Journal and will help manage all aspects of the publication and review process using the SAGE Track electronic submission and review platform. The Assistant Editor is expected to maintain timely and effective communication, advance journal performance, and uphold JEE’s high quality standard.

Applicants should possess their own resume of publications and be familiar with the standards and process of academic publishing in experiential education or related fields. Applicants should also possess strong organizational and communication skills, the ability to independently assess scholarly products, interest in building relationships with other scholars, and a desire to help lead the field’s premier research outlet.

This position is supported with a stipend from the Association for Experiential Education. The applicant’s institution will also be expected to provide support in the form of faculty office space, utilities, the use of computers or other office equipment, student workers or other basic expenses. The application should describe how the position will fit within the applicant’s institutional scope of work, including any anticipated support.

Applicants should send a letter of application that includes a description of their qualifications for the Assistant Editor position and a statement of goals related to advancing knowledge in experiential education. Applicants should also include their Curriculum Vitae.

Applicants are encouraged to contact the current JEE Editor in Chief, Jayson Seaman, at jee@aeed.org with questions about the journal’s current processes and operations.

Applications, nominations, and requests for additional information should be sent electronically to Sherry Bagley, ED, Association for Experiential Education, at sherry@aeed.org. Please put “JEE Assistant Editor Application” in the subject line of your email.
